CCIDC ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT SALES TAX CIVIC PROJECTS

Cities may use money raised by this sales tax for a wide variety of projects including land, buildings, equipment, facilities expenditures and improvements related to projects defined in Section 2 of the Act (same uses as authorized for §4A) or found by the board of directors to be required or suitable for use for:

- professional and amateur sports (including children's sports) and athletic facilities; tourism and entertainment facilities; convention and public park purposes and events, (including stadiums, ballparks, auditoriums, amphitheaters, concert halls, parks and open space improvements, museums, exhibition facilities);
- related store, restaurant, concession, parking and transportation facilities;
- related street, water and sewer facilities; and
- affordable housing.

To promote and develop new and expanded business enterprises that create or retain primary jobs, a city may provide:

- public safety facilities;
- recycling facilities;
- streets and roads;
- drainage and related improvements;
- demolition of existing structures;
- general municipally owned improvements;
- maintenance and operating costs associated with projects; and
- any other project that the board determines will contribute to the promotion or development of new or expanded business enterprises that create or retain primary jobs.

Can CCIDC undertake projects outside city limits?

An economic development corporation may undertake projects outside city limits so long as it is clear that the city benefits from the project. If a city undertakes a project outside its limits, it must receive permission to do so from the governing body of the entity with jurisdiction in that area. For example, if a city locates a project beyond city limits, it should receive approval from the county's commissioner's court.
